Summer Research Program
Application Instructions for Student-Initiated Research Projects

Application Process
To be considered for the SRP, all application materials for a project must be received on Symplicity by the application deadline. A complete application includes the following:

- A completed application form
- A completed budget sheet
- A copy of the applicant’s unofficial transcript, generated through myISIS
- A tailored CV/resume
- The completed SRP Supervisor Support Form, detailing the student’s role in the research project, the skills and knowledge he/she will gain, and a project supervision plan. If the main supervisor is not available for the entire project or able to supervise the student regularly, he/she must include the name of another qualified individual (e.g. a PhD student in the same lab) who will supervise and give feedback to the student. The supervisor should send the support form to cipe@yale-nus.edu.sg by the program deadline with the subject line “[Student Name] SRP Supervisor Support Form”.
- If the project supervisor is not from Yale-NUS College, an email endorsement from a Yale-NUS co-supervisor is also required, addressing the applicant’s qualifications and ability to undertake the proposed project. The co-supervisor should send the email to cipe@yale-nus.edu.sg with the subject line “[Student Name] SRP Co-Supervisor Support”.
- If the project will be carried out partly or entirely in a language other than English, a faculty member teaching in the target language must send a brief email endorsement of the student’s language ability to cipe@yale-nus.edu.sg with the subject line “[Student Name] SRP Language Endorsement”.

Application Outcomes
- There are three possible outcomes for a project proposal: approved, not approved and conditionally approved.
- Conditionally approved projects require revisions by a certain date set by the selection committee. If the revisions are submitted on time and considered sufficient, the project will be approved.
- Every student whose project has been approved will receive an offer to join the program and will have a week after the notification date to accept or decline the offer.
