Dear students,

We want to start by acknowledging all the changes that our community is going through this week. Many of you are moving off campus and saying goodbye to friends. All of you are adjusting to new circumstances and changes that may feel rather sudden. We hope that this newsletter finds you safe and sound, and that things will start to settle down soon.

Here at CIPE, we are all working remotely and missing our colleagues and campus community. We’re trying our best to check in with our team members and send each other some cheer through all the ups and downs. We are staying tuned in to the situation on campus and want to acknowledge the amazing community support we’ve witnessed in this difficult time. We’ve seen community members self-organize to offer a variety of help and resources to one another. We’ve seen people extend kindness and gratitude through a multitude of ways. This is a shout out to everyone who has reached out to support another, regardless of their position as student, alumni, staff, or faculty. Thank you for your care.

We hope you’ll read on for the latest news and updates from CIPE. For students still exploring summer options, please check out the remaining Summer Research Programme (SRP) projects still open in Symplicity.

Last but not least, a note for the Class of 2020:
CIPE is here to support you in your post-graduate endeavours and your assigned CIPE advisor should have been in touch with you recently. For international students on TGS, we will be sending you an update on how to better navigate your job search based on the current MOM policies around work passes.
We hope you’re all staying well and send you warm greetings from CIPE.

Best regards,

Beth and Annette
Experiential Learning Team
